2011 Miss, Jr. Miss and Little Miss Indian Oklahoma City Named

Recently, three lovely young ladies were chosen to fill the positions of Miss, Jr. Miss and Little Miss Indian Oklahoma.

Chosen as 2011 Miss Indian OKC is Stephanie Tehauno; Kaylon Wood, Jr. Miss Indian OKC; and Rachel Scott, Little Miss Indian OKC.

Throughout the year, by invitation, the current princess title holders serve as ambassadors for their respective tribes, Native People, Changing Winds Cultural Society and Oklahoma City at various events by performing sign language, dance exhibitions, participating in parades and serving as greeters.

The young ladies attend Pow Wows, Cultural Events, make appearances and/or perform at luncheons, conferences, and civic, corporate and private events.

Highlight annual events include the opening and closing ceremonies of the State Fair of Oklahoma and Native American Cultural Day at the State Capitol. They will end their reign

Excerpts provided by Changing Winds Cultural Society

starting with a very special "Outgoing Princess Honor Dance" held in February the annual followed by Miss Indian Oklahoma City Competition and Performance in March where they will pass on their titles to the next chosen Jamie Barse, a Sac and Fox Tribal member also served as the first Miss Indian Oklahoma City from 1992-1994.

Kaylon is of the Sac and Fox, Kickapoo, Meskwaki, Iowa, Otoe, and Seminole tribes. She belongs to the Bear clan. Her Indian name is Nah-ke-ka-moquah. It means "Little Bear following along a trail of water."

Kaylon had the privilege to serve as Little Miss Indian Oklahoma City in 2007-2008, and also the Central Oklahoma Tribal Society Princess in 2008-2009. In 2009-2010, Kaylon was Little Miss Sac & Fox Nation.

Kaylon is the 14-year-old daughter of Corene Scott and Eric Wood. Kaylon has an older sister named Nicole. Her maternal grandmother is Norma Jean Scott. Her paternal grandparents are Louise Big Soldier and the late Freeland Wood Jr.

Three Nominated For Senior Man And Senior Woman

The Senior Woman Candidate for this year is Vera Grant. "She worked for the Nation all these years at the Clinic and Ceremonial Doings for many years and is a good role model for her kids and grandkids."

Senior Man Candidates for this year are Don Abney and Curtis (Dagwood) Wakole.

Don Abney - "Has dedicated all kinds of effort through his job of 26 years with the Nation and also his family life, always putting forth a great effort.

Any way he can, he helps Tribal members."

Curtis (Dagwood) Wakole "Dagwood participates in traditional ceremonies as well as activities and functions involving the Sac and Fox Nation.

His positive attitude and can-do spirit is infectious. He's an active member of the Sac and Fox Nation Honor Guard as well as the Elder's Activity Committee, donating endless amounts of time and energy to every project he's involved with.

He's a great role model for his grandsons and many other youth throughout the tribe.

It has been my priviledge and honor to get to know Dagwood, the kind-hearted, laid back, easy to talk to, friendly individual that he is."

"He is very supportive of the Nation. Caring, volunteers his time. Also Vice-Chairman of the Veterans group. Also a good friend."
